

Mette Franck: COVID-19 and student outcomes

Mette Franck's research is aimed at investigating how students' learning outcomes were affected by the COVID-19 lockdown. This will be done by studying student evaluations, course grades and surveys of students' and teachers' experiences. The findings will be related to a range of different background characteristics.